Leidigs To Appeal Gas Station O.K. To New Council

Carmel planning commissioners yesterday afternoon granted a building permit for the Fenton Plaza 160-car parking garage and service station, construction to commence before June 22. Twice City Attorney John Morse and Planning Commission Chairman Herbert Blanks asked if representatives of Fred or Dale Leidig were present in the audience. They were answered by silence.

The Leidigs told the Pine Cone this morning that they will appeal to the city council.

The Leidigs, through their attorneys, have repeatedly opposed the service station to be built at the corner of Mission and Seventh Streets; first, when the planning commission decided the gas station was an accessory use to the parking garage, secondly, in an appeal against the commission's decision before the city council, thirdly in Superior Court in Salinas.

Three new councilmen have been elected since the Leidigs lost their last appeal by a 3 to 2 vote.

Other permits granted were for a new motel, additional lighting for a parking lot, remodeling of the exterior and interior of two motels considered as one with rearranged parking for the new site, a change of plans at Fenton Plaza.

Commissioners denied permits for a second story addition to an apartment house, installation of a parking area at another motel, a variance for a private marine museum addition. They set public hearings on May 25 for an extension of All Saints' Church use permit and a change in the municipal code, set the zone of interest for rezoning of residential lots to parking lots on property adjacent to the Christian Science Church, continued for study the Carmel Valley Master Plan, recommended a joint council-commission committee be established to study driveway grades in the residence zone, then adjourned until Wednesday afternoon (4:00 o'clock) to adopt the Central District Rezoning Plan.

Charles Catalan will build the new motel on five lots on the west side of San Carlos Street between Fourth and Fifth Avenues, immediately north of Town House. The firm of Elston and Cranston are the architects. The plans provided for an excess of five off-street parking spaces above the 100 percent requirement for motels. Commissioners requested that these

Fate Of Handsome City Pine Rests With New Council

Last month the old city council looked at a driveway at Fourth and Casanova and rather than give Ray Berney a variance, suggested that he ask for permission to remove two city trees, an oak and a tall, beautiful pine.

A new city council visits the site on tree tour Tuesday and decides whether a variance is not worth two trees.

Other items on the tour: Mrs. Dee White's request for removal of a tree on Torres between Fourth and Fifth. Gaston J. Ley asks for a permit to maintain retaining walls and steps in sidewalk right-of-way, Monte Verde, northeast of Fifth. Mrs. Kaye Benson complains that untrimmed brush at Northwest corner of Fourth and Lopez obscures the intersection and poison oak is obstacle to children on Fourth Avenue.

The tour leaves city hall at 4:00 o'clock.

Tuesday's session dealt with the economic problems leading up to the 1929 stock market crash. Mr. Craig took advantage of his location in a stock broker's office and demonstrated the rise and fall in our economy resulting from World War I by using a graph on the wall. Judging by the large number of questions asked by the students, in Spanish, the economic system was difficult for them to understand. (Continued on Page Twenty)

Opera Star Uppman To Sing In Bach Festival, July 18-24

Theodor Uppman, Metropolitan Opera baritone, will head a brilliant list of vocal soloists, some of them new and some of them returnees, at the 23rd Annual Bach Festival here July 18-24.

Uppman, who has sung a variety of roles with the Met since his debut there in 1953 as Pelleas in Pelleas and Melisande, is a native of Palo Alto, and a former Opera Workshop student at Stanford University.

During his increasingly successful career, he has appeared under the batons of Pierre Monteux in San Francisco and Jean Morel, Bruno Walter and others in the East, and has sung opposite such stars as Maggie Teyte and Patrice Munsel.

He was selected to create the title role of Billy Budd at Covent Garden and has also been very successful as a star of standard repertory including The Magic Flute, Don Giovanni and Fledermaus.

Two newcomers to the Bach program, both also Californians, will appear on this year's festival program with Uppman. Margot Blum, prize-winning dramatic mezzo-soprano from San Francisco, will sing a contralto role in the Bach event, and bass soloist will be Roderick Risto, whose home is in Hollywood where he has performed. History Is Spanish To Donald Craig's High School Class Unperturbed by spectators, news photographers, television lights and cameras, 14 Carmel High School juniors, all third year Spanish students, with their teacher, Donald Craig, gave a Public Schools Week demonstration in the Irving Lundborg Company window on Tuesday afternoon. No English was spoken during the hour-long lesson. The subject studied was United States history, a compulsory course in California high schools.

The U. S. History in Spanish program started at Carmel High School this fall. Students chose to enter the class. The only requirement was a previous knowledge of Spanish and an interest in the program demonstrated beforehand to Mr. Craig. Since September these students have spent two hours each day studying U. S. History and Spanish and will get full graduation credit for two courses at the end of the year.

Carmelo School in Lower Carmel Valley, one of the six schools in the Carmel Unified School District, is 101 years old. Above is the first structure built in 1859 on land deeded to the then Carmelo School District by James Meadows.

The school was built by community effort. Residents of the area each donated a certain number of board feet of lumber, nails, hours of labor, etc. The school had only one room, pictured at the right. All eight grades were taught in this room. Pupils sat two to a desk and shared an inkwell. In wet winters the older boys stabbed frogs through cracks in the floor, descendants of these boys report.

The original Carmelo School site is now occupied by a two-room structure used for kindergarten classes. This structure was built in 1918 after the first school was destroyed by fire. A second room was later added to the 1918 one-room schoolhouse. These two rooms served the needs of Carmelo District until 1955 when the present modern five-room Carmelo School was built across the Carmel Valley Road from the original 1859 school site following a successful bond election. On January 14, 1958, Carmelo School District voted to join the Carmel Unified School District and Carmelo became Carmel, district's oldest school.

Pupils attending Carmelo School in 1914 are seen above outside the original 1859 building, still in use at the time the picture was taken. Mrs. William Rhyner of Corral de Tierra was the teacher at that time. She is seen in the second row, extreme right. Mrs. Rhyner, born Rose Nason, was a Carmelo pupil who returned to teach at her former school. Students identified in the picture are Hatton Martin, Joe Onessimo, Leo and Ora Vasquez, M. Allason, Alice Meadows and Irene Wolter.

Among the teachers who have taught at Carmelo are Mrs. Everett Smith and Mrs. Frank Hatton. The latter retired several years ago after teaching at Carmelo for 15 years.

The present Carmelo school has five classrooms, five teachers and 126 pupils. Four more rooms will be needed in two years' time. Among pupils at the school are descendants of the original Valley families that built the first Carmelo School 101 years ago. Many residents of the area recall "the grand old days at Carmelo." They include members of the Wilder, McKenzie, Williams, McClurg, Tomasini, Coleman, Selfridge, Mead-

There's no use storming at the County Planning Commission over the mushroom factory that has been built two miles up the Valley. Chairman Keith Evans says he didn't know anything about it. Nobody came before the commission for a use permit, or rezoning. Checking with the building inspector's office in Monterey, he found that the building permit had been issued without question. The land is zoned agricultural-residential, and you grow mushrooms, so that's agricultural, isn't it?

Opinion around town is that it's a chemical process.

If growing something constitutes agricultural activity, we can expect to see breweries, wineries, and pharmaceutical works for serums and vaccines in Carmel Valley. What grows better and faster than bacteria . . . and it's a plant.

Life's vicissitudes are easier for Carmelites who even in despair can look at the beauty of trees, mountains, sea and shore. Road departments seem determined to destroy this comfort for troubled souls. Two weeks ago we deplored the red reflector signs at the tip of Carmel Point, installed by the county road department.

This week we shudder every time we pass the red paint splashed on roadside rocks by the Carmel Street Department to mark no parking zones on Scenic Drive. Attention please, Street Commissioner Whitaker!

Ho . . . so you can believe in capital punishment and still belong to the human race. We've been hearing so much to the contrary that we were relieved to read in this month's Parish Patter, Carmel All Saints' parish publication, the following:

"Capital punishment is theologically justifiable," said the Rev. Jerome Politzer, dean of the Convocation of Monterey, at a recent

PILOT MARKET WINS LITTLE LEAGUE OPENER

Manager Art Carpenter's veteran-studded Pilot Market Little League team exploded for 14 runs in the opener against San Carlos Agency Monday night to clip the realtors, 14 to 4, before a SRO crowd at the Carmel Little League park. Impressive pre-game ceremonies, highlighted by the Naval Air Station color guard, eighty Little League players in uniform, got the 1960 season started on a happy note and prospects appear bright that this will be another highly successful season of Little League baseball.

Monday's opener was a typical early-season game with the plate jumping around for the pitchers, a few miscues by the fielders, and some wild swinging by the batters, but the enthusiasm was high and the packed stands enjoyed the action as much as the players.

Pilot Market's pitching trio of Curt Mitchell, Vince DiBiase, and Tim Head pitched steady ball for the entire six innings and appeared to have the control situation well in hand. Manager Jack Miller's San Carlos pitching crew of Larry Little, Joe Stevens, and Jim Sparolini yielded only four hits to the Pilot batters but was having difficulty finding the plate and gave up nine free trips to first base. Curt Mitchell, starting Pilot hurler, was the winning pitcher.

Vince DiBiase, third-baseman and pitcher for Pilots, was the batting king for the opening game as he stroked a home-run in the fifth inning to drive in a pair of runs. The stocky slugger also connected for a single to wind up the day with two hits in four trips to the plate.

Tonight's Little League action gets underway at 6:00 o'clock. Newt Goodrich's Boys' Town aggregation tackling the Pilot Market gang. Boys' Town has seven veterans returning for action this season and should give the grocers a sturdy tussle. Friday night at 6:00 o'clock, Turner & McEl-downey will cross bats with San Carlos Realty.

Farm Team play, originally scheduled to begin this Saturday, has been postponed until Saturday, May 7. There is still room for players on the Farm clubs and boys looking for action in this circuit should call Bob Connell at MAYfair 4-1085.

PADRES CLUB GONZALES 14 TO 3

In a wild first inning which saw eight Carmel High batters connect for safe hits, the Padres piled up 7 runs against the Gonzales Spartans to unhinge the visitors, 14 to 3, in a crucial CCAL B-division game. The Padres and Spartans were tied for third place before Friday's game and the Carmel win put the Red & Gray a full game ahead of the Spartans. While Carmel was defeating Gonzales, the San Lorenzo Cougars took a big step toward evening up the league by upsetting the league-leading Gilroy Mustangs.

Big Chris Wilkin pitched the win over the Spartans, holding the veteran Gonzales lineup to 4 hits in the six innings he toiled. Jim Brown and Forrest Cornwall pitched the last two innings for the Padres. Besides pitching a solid game, Wilkin also blasted three safe hits to drive in three runs.

Hitting honors were shared by Ron Faia, 2-for-3; Carlos Montenegro, 2-for-3; Bob Little, 2-for-4; and Chris Wilkin, 3-for-4. Dave Hansen and Bob Little sparked in the field for the Padres as they took sure hits away from the Gonzales swingers.

Tomorrow afternoon the Padres travel to Gilroy for a showdown battle with the front-running Mustangs. With a 4-3 league record to date, the Padres have to win this one to keep in the running for the league title. The Gilroy squad has a 6-1 record and a win over the Padres will just about put the Mustangs beyond the reach of the rest of the teams in the league. Jim Brown will draw the pitching assignment for tomorrow's crucial league tilt.

MONTEREY TRACKERS WHIP CARMEL, 67 TO 46

Despite two outstanding hurdle performances by Al Dahlstrand, the Monterey High track squad had too much power for the out-manned Carmel gang last Friday afternoon and the Toreadores out-scored the Padres, 67 to 46, in the varsity division and swamped the Little Padres, 102 to 2. Dahlstrand won both the high and low hurdle races, setting a new Carmel High standard for the lows as he zipped the 180 yards in 20.7. The Padres picked up two more first places in the one-sided meet as Danny Moore won the half-mile and the Carmel relay team nipped the Tor-eador baton-passing quartet.

Other point-makers for the Carmel squad were Dennis James, 2nd in 880; Julio Montenegro, 2nd in 100 and 3rd in 220; Frank Mayo, 3rd in 100 and 2nd in 220; Lee Olson, 2nd in 440; Frank Preve, 3rd in 440; Buddy Steffens, 2nd in mile; Gerhard Kalmus, 3rd in mile; Charley Todd, 1st place relay team; Russ Wise, tie for 1st in high jump; and Gary Clay, 2nd in pole vault. In the lightweight division, Carmel's George Pollock picked up a third in the broad jump and Jack Zenteno earned a three-way tie for second in the high jump.

MEETING TONIGHT TO ORGANIZE PONY LEAGUE

This evening at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset School Cafeteria, parents of 13 and 14 year old boys and other interested persons are asked to attend a meeting to discuss formation of a proposed pony baseball league.

If organized, pony league games will be played after school is out during the summer months. Little League officers are sponsoring the pony league organizational meeting.

MONTEREY COUNTY STREAMS STOCKED FOR FISH SEASON

The State Fish and Game Commission announces that the following streams in Monterey County have been stocked with trout for Saturday's opening day of the fishing season: Arroyo Seco, Bfg Sur, Carmel River, Los Padres Reservoir and Nacimiento River.

Anglers should not overlook the unstocked waters, particularly in the back country and along the coastal slopes, which have good populations of wild trout, the commission advises.

State limit is 10 fish, but not more than 10 pounds and one fish.

Shaw Comedy Opens Tomorrow Night At The Circle Theatre

Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion opens at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre on Friday evening.

Directed by Frederick Rider, who staged Shaw's Don Juan in Hell at the Circle a year ago, Pygmalion has a cast of 14, including seven former British subjects to whom the sounds of English speech, so essential to this play, come naturally.

Edgar Pye will be seen as Alfred Doolittle, the Cockney who revels in the irresponsibility of the "undeserving poor." Derek Napier Lawford will play Colonel Pickering, retired officer and amateur phoneticist, who wagers that Professor Henry Higgins cannot pass off Doolittle's daughter, Eliza, as a duchess in high society.

Marvin John, Coralie Schatz and Sylvia Kightly are cast as the Eynsford Hills.

Ruth Ware will be seen as Higgins' mother, Felicia Mummert as his housekeeper, and James Alcorn, Sally Reichard, Beth Zanides, Douglas Zug and Anne Tweedy in smaller roles.

Rosamond Zammit and Errol Allen played together in Dial "M" for Murder at the Circle two years ago. Each has been seen there since in major dramatic roles.

Pygmalion will play on Friday,

Saturday and Sunday evenings this week and throughout the month of May.

Art On The Peninsula

Monterey Peninsula College announces a memorial exhibition of 36 oil paintings by Albert J. DeRome, who died in Pacific Grove last year. The show opens Monday and continues through May 13 in the college library lecture hall. Hours: 11:00 in the morning until 9:00 o'clock in the evening, Monday through Thursdays, 11:00 to 5:00 Fridays, 1:00 to 5:00 Saturdays and Sundays.

DeRome studied at the Mark Hopkins Institute of Art and, after going into business, became a trustee of the Oakland College of Arts and Crafts. Permanently disabled by an automobile accident in 1931, he moved to the Monterey Peninsula and began to paint.

Though visitors and collectors frequently tried to buy his works, he refused to sell, arguing that he was an "amateur." During the war, he was advisor on camouflage technique to General Stilwell.

Individual DeRome canvases won the "popular" award at the Monterey County Fair several times over the years. DeRome died at the age of 74 last June.

The DeRome exhibition will be sponsored by MPC's Art Department, which made arrangements with Mrs. DeRome.

Sculptures of Joseph Goethe and sculptures and paintings by his wife, Dorothy Miller, will remain on display through May 9 at the Hidden Village Gallery, 220 Olivier Street, Monterey. The gallery is open every day except Mondays from noon until 5:00 o'clock and again from 7:00 o'clock in the evening until midnight.

Joseph Goethe has exhibited his work in over one hundred museums and universities in the United States and his sculpture is in permanent museum collections in Tennessee, Virginia, South Carolina, Maryland, Washington, D. C., and the San Francisco Museum of Art. Dorothy Miller has exhibited widely in California during the past 10 years after studying at UCLA.

The weekly Friday afternoon public-judged art shows were resumed last week at the Craft Studios after a holiday break. Kay Rodgers of Carmel received the largest popular vote and first prize for an oil landscape. Second prize was awarded to Roger West who exhibited a water color.

The Feingarten Galleries on Lincoln Street are exhibiting paintings of Rufino Tomayo. Sunday evening several hundred guests attended the preview of the Mexican painter's exhibition at a buffet dinner given by Charles Feingarten and Mrs. Hugh Hannon, curator of the Carmel Feingarten Galleries.

Rufino Tomayo, formerly head of the Arts Section of the Mexican Ministry of Public Education and also head of the department of Ethnographic Drawing, National Museum of Archaeology, Mexico City, although much influenced by his study of pre-Columbian work gives a modern interpretation of Mexican life. Color is used in relation to arrangement of masses and to maintain a harmony between subject, color and form in his paintings.

Tomayo's work does not center around popular or national themes but portrays the moods and feelings of the people and certain aspects of Mexican life.

Rufino Tomayo has exhibited in museums in Mexico, Europe, South America and the United States. His paintings are included in the permanent collection of the Art In-

Parks, Fabrizio Soloists For May Symphony Concert

Two Peninsula residents will be soloists in the season's final concert by the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra on May 10, at 8:30 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium.

Wade Parks, pianist, and Raymond Fabrizio, flutist, have been selected by conductor Earl Bernard Murray to perform two works from opposite ends of the musical spectrum.

Fabrizio, first flute with the orchestra since 1955, will play the solo part in J. S. Bach's Suite No. 2 in B minor for flute and strings. Margaret Fabrizio will play the harpsichord continuo.

Wade Parks, making his second appearance as soloist with the symphony, will be heard in Richard Strauss' Burleske.

Parks made his concert debut at the age of 15 in Chicago, where he studied with Leo Podolsky, Rudolph Ganz and Mollie Margolies and graduated from the Chicago Musical College. He received his Master of Music degree from the University of Southern California, where his teachers included John Crown and Mme. Alice Ehlers.

Following Army service, he joined the music faculty of the University of Oregon, appearing in recitals both at the university and elsewhere in the Northwest. A Monterey resident for the past several years, he has continued his study of piano with Egon Petri and Alexander Libermann. He has appeared in numerous recitals and concerts both here and in San Francisco as well as at the University of Santa Clara and Mills College.

Ray Fabrizio came to the Peninsula from San Francisco, where he combined studying flute with Merrill Jordan, working for his master's degree in English at San Francisco State, and playing with the San Francisco Symphony, the Ballet Orchestra and the Little Symphony. He received his earlier music training in Los Angeles, where he performed in studio orchestras while attending Los Angeles State.

Since 1958, Fabrizio has been an instructor in English at Monterey Peninsula College. This summer, for the second year, he will be a featured player in the Carmel Bach Festival. He and Mrs. Fabrizio (a harpsichord student of Putnam Aldrich) make their home near Big Sur, and both have participated in several concerts at Nepenthe with the San Francisco Chamber Players.

Besides the two solo works, the symphony's May 10 concert will include The Unanswered Question by Charles Ives, Pavan for a Dead Princess by Maurice Ravel, and The Testament of Freedom by Randall Thompson, the latter work to feature the Fort Ord Soldiers' Chorus. H. M. M. Nicholas of Carmel will serve as concertmaster for the final program.

stitute of Chicago, Museum of Modern Art in New York City, and the Philadelphia, Cleveland, Cincinnati and San Francisco Museums of Art.

His fresco murals at the National Conservatory of Music in Mexico City and at the Museo Nacional Mexico are considered among the outstanding works of art in Mexico.

Del Monte Dog Show To Include Saturday Boxer Special

The Del Monte Kennel Club will hold its 35th Annual All-Breed Dog Show at Del Monte Lodge, Pebble Beach, Sunday, May 29, under the sanction of the American Kennel Club. It is the largest unbench show in America.

The Boxer Specialty Show will be held at the same location the day before, Saturday, May 28.

Any dog registered with the American Kennel Club may be entered in the Del Monte Dog Show. Free training classes will start May 1, 2:00 o'clock at the Carmel High School, Ted Ziel, supervisor, and will be held each Sunday until May 22.

Last year 1400 dogs were entered. Derek Rayne, president of the Del Monte Kennel Club and nationally known judge, is largely responsible for the great success of the Del Monte Show.

Among returning performers will be the popular San Francisco tenor James Schwabacher.

The management of the Bach

Festival, in announcing the appearance of Uppman, said the distinguished baritone will be singing here as the result of a special donation from a "friend of the festival" who wishes to remain anonymous.

The entire program of the 23rd festival will be in the nature of a memorial performance dedicated to the memory of the late Dene Denny, who with Hazel Watrous was a co-founder of the festival in 1935.

MPC OPEN HOUSE TOMORROW

Open house will be held in all facilities at Monterey Peninsula College tomorrow evening from 7:00 - 9:00 o'clock in honor of Public Schools Week.

Members of the public are invited to sit in on classes also, during these hours, according to MPC president, Dr. Frederick R. Huber.

TUESDAY ACCIDENT

In an accident Tuesday night on the Carmel Valley Road, Merle Murphy and Alan Tarsen, both of Carmel, received minor injuries. They were not hospitalized.

Murphy, 39, westbound at 7:40 o'clock, failed to negotiate a curve and his pickup overturned. Tarsen, 16, was a passenger.

Add up the value of your home, your car, your stocks and bonds, plus the face value of your life insurance policy and you probably have a sizeable estate—and one that deserves the immediate attention of both your attorney and your bank's trust officer. But heretofore, on the Monterey Peninsula, full facilities for trust services have not been available. Realizing the need for such facilities, Crocker-Anglo, California's oldest national bank, has just opened its own local trust department. At your service are trust officers skilled in all phases of trust matters — from taking care of your investments while you are away, to administering a trust to meet your family needs.

The new department is housed in temporary quarters immediately adjoining Crocker-Anglo's Monterey Office at Alvarado and Bonifacio Place, pending completion of permanent quarters.

You are cordially invited to call us (FRontier 3-2437) at your convenience for an appointment. No obligation, of course. We think you and your attorney will like the way Crocker-Anglo does business.

Mary Lindsay-Oliver Reveals Skeleton In Her Musical Closet

BY JOHN UPTON

Mary Lindsay-Oliver, Carmel music teacher, composer, and critic who will hold open house at her new studio at San Carlos and Thirteenth on May 1 and 2, has a musical skeleton in her closet.

Although she is widely known for her deep understanding and respect for the "greats" from Bach to Schoenberg, few of her friends and students know that 30 years ago she was one of the driving forces in a movement that threatened to demolish the diatonic scale in order to forge a "music of the future."

This movement was "The Thirteenth Sound," so called because of its thesis that the conventional chromatic scale of twelve intervals was an unnecessary limitation to the composer. Its leader was Julian Carrillo, a graduate of the National Conservatory in Mexico City.

Carrillo believed that it was time for a second revolution in music.

"The first took place 46 centuries ago," he said, "when the Chinese revolutionized the art by the adding of a sixth sound—in other words, by the conquest of the first half tone. Until then, the world had known but five sounds: F, C, G, D, and A."

The Mexican composer split each half tone into as many as eight intervals, thus producing a chromatic scale with 96 sounds where 12 grew before. He designed a new system of notation requiring no sharps or flats, and built new instruments capable of playing his music.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver became associated with Carrillo in 1925 when he brought the Thirteenth Sound Ensemble to New York and played a concert of his own compositions under the sponsorship of the League of Composers. In the following year Carrillo founded "El Sonido 13," an international magazine devoted to the propagation of his musical ideas, with Miss Lindsay-Oliver as managing editor and contributor.

"It was my privilege to hear Mr. Carrillo's concert," she wrote in the second issue, "and while the unaccustomed ear searched to detect the intervals as intervals, the effort became almost immediately set aside in the pure enjoyment of the coloring and ethereal import of the whole, which proved fascinating and convincing as a unique musical experience."

The critics were more guarded. "Mr. Carrillo is entitled to much credit for ingenuity in laying the groundwork," said the New York Tribune.

"Carrillo had concert offers from many well-known conductors," Miss Lindsay-Oliver says, "but he made the mistake of demanding too much money."

The magazine, which as an added reminder was published on the thirteenth of the month, folded after the second issue. Carrillo ran out of funds, and today, even among musicians, his name is nearly forgotten.

Carlin Arriola Makes Effective Stage Debut As Miles In James' Turn Of The Screw At The Studio

A celebrated tale of the unnatural and the supernatural, Henry James' The Turn of the Screw, has been translated to the stage as The Innocents, current attraction at The Studio.

The change in title is indicative of some of the subtleties which have been lost in William Archibald's adaptation; but still, the play shares the insights which upwell so chillingly in James's novel.

What happens—or appears to happen—in the play is affected by how one interprets the main characters and their motivations. A young, impressionable woman becomes governess to two orphaned children whose guardian has no wish to be bothered with them. They are Flora, lonely and given to bizarre fancies, and her older brother, Miles, who for inexplicit but unwholesome behavior has been dismissed from his school. Both "innocents" have been frighteningly influenced by a vicious pair of servants, who, though now dead, continue to possess them. Recognition of the evil presence by the governess, and her eventual determination to free Flora and Miles from the "ghosts" haunting them, carries the play to a terrifying climax.

Explanation of the "ghosts" as simply a neurotic projection of Miss Giddens's is suggested, intentionally or otherwise, in the interpretation of the governess by Maria Hallsted. Though compelling, her performance is hysterical and histrionic to a pitch that shatters the play's less obvious implications.

By contrast understated, the acting of 14-year-old Carlin Arriola as Miles sustains greater interest, and marks a most effective stage debut. He captures both Miles's charm and his latent fear, tension and knowing, building the part steadily to the final scene in which Miles is literally overwhelmed by the conflicting demands focussed on him.

Terry Garner, 12, is appealing as the fanciful Flora. On the whole, director Richard Bailey has done a good job of coaching these previously inexperienced young people through exceptionally difficult roles.

Betsy Pye performs with her usual capability as the fourth party in the cast, the kindly, frightened housekeeper, Mrs. Grose.

The play is confined to a single setting—a room in a gloomy English country house in the 1880s—but the number of scenes (five in Act One, three in Act Two) creates problems of sustaining mood and pace which The Studio production does not entirely solve. Many rough spots in the opening nights should smooth out in subsequent performances, however. Even with them, The Innocents holds the interest and pulls suggestively at the imagination.

It is understood that The Innocents is to be Richard Bailey's final offering as managing director of The Studio. This is regrettable: not only has he staged some fine experimental productions, but his work as both actor and director has been consistently stimulating, capable and creative. We hope his detachment from the local theatre scene will be only temporary.

The Innocents plays Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights (Thursday evening performances have been cancelled) at The Studio, with curtain at 8:30 o'clock. —V.S.

GOOD SAILING WEATHER

*The islands stand
Like grey-blue cardboard cut-outs
Against a greyer sky;
While mountain-high
The ground-swells toss huge breakers
Toward the rock-strewn strand.
Spume flings from foam-capped crests;
While far off-shore a fleet of tiny sails
Tack and veer a complement
To the challenging sea's Wild element.*

—GRACE R. BALLARD.

HIGHWAY LAMENT

*Wail, Wheels! Whine your chromium circles down the rock-black thread.
Wail—across this place where once was home...*

*Home—a house that held no star spectacular to mark its walls, no spaciousness, no colonnade;
but leaned its domesticity against young hillside trees. Children, going through its door, inquired into why leaves fall; and pressed a leaf or two between the pages of their book.
The trees grew and shaded the house with security...*
Home—a numbered square on the City map.

*Wail, Wheels! Speed the slick stripes!
Speed through the rubbed remnants of the once-living,
where trees wave dying arms in the dispassionate air;
where scattered foundation blocks lie, stricken as forgotten gravestones.
Turn! Turn—like futile whirligigs, against an asphalt eternity...*

—OLIVIA YOUNG.

MOUNTAIN PEAKS AT SUNSET

*Mountain peaks blush at memories of day,
As they pull up about them wraps
of shadow;
Remembering the sun's relentless stare
That tried to probe the secrets of their slopes
Which the protective arms of trees half hid.
Now they long for the darkness to extinguish
The fires of their communion with the sun;
Wait for the night to camouflage day knowledge
Which stars can only wonder at,
and moonlight
Mystically turns into subtle meaning.*

—PATRICIA LAW.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thorburn
Now and again, some university press brings out a sort of literary oddity which is not only informative, but of interest to persons concerned with fields of knowledge other than the actual subject of the book. This is a long and involved way of leading up to the fact that we have a new book on Queen Elizabeth I which is interesting for other reasons than the history of England. There is at Yale University a club called the Elizabethan Club, and this is the first book about Queen Elizabeth to be published by the club. It is a reproduction of a valuable book owned by the club, entitled, The Queenes Maisties Passage through the Citie of London to Westminster the Day before her Coronation, which was the first book written about Elizabeth I. The imprint date is 1559. The introduction was written by Sir John Neale, and the illustrations of the book are quaint old maps of the London of those days and of drawings made of the Queen by persons who witnessed the procession. A small but delightful volume.

By Rocking Chair Across America is by Alex Atkinson. He says "Too many books about the United States are written by men who have spent only a few weeks in the country. This one is different: it is by a man who has never been there in his life." This one is for those who can take it, and riotously funny.

If you are building, remodeling, or landscape gardening your own bit of heaven, we have three new books for you, edited and published by three of the home-type magazines. House and Garden's Book of Building, and House Beautiful's Building Manual, contain plans and interiors harmonious and peaceful, mostly in the middle income group. Better Homes and Gardens' Garden Ideas is a book full of plants, plans, and plantings, with lovely illustrations in color. These three are all magazine size books.

The English Channel by James Williamson has had excellent reviews. It is a history of the Channel and of its influence on the Western world.

Espionage in colonial America is the subject of John Bakeless' Turncoats, Traitors and Heroes. Much of this material is new and the author has touched only briefly upon facts well known to students today.

Three more small books this week are: We Retired to Travel by Samuel Lessere, who learned that by living abroad two can actually live as cheaply as one, a new collection of poems by Mark Van Doren called Morning Worship and Other Poems, and a nudge for the inept bridge player called Bridge for Beginners, written by Victor Mollo.

And finally, a small spiral-bound thing which we hope you will treat gently because of its vulnerable binding, which is a Desert Guide Book to the Anza/Borrego Desert Area. It was written by Horace Parker and illustrated with photographs which look hot and dry.

There are more books; come in and see them. Good reading!

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

The Monterey Peninsula College on Friday last presented Emilio Osta, pianist, in a program of Spanish music commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Albeniz. Osta though born in San Francisco is of Spanish descent and his whole performance was a reflection of Spanish temperament. He performed seven excerpts from Iberia, perhaps Albeniz' best known work. Sharp, strong and excitable piano technique and speed characterized his interesting playing of his countryman's compositions. The pianist's peculiar playing was unable to perform the two extra numbers, Chopin waltzes as Chopin wrote them, for no composer demands more legato and singing qualities, which was impossible with digital staccatos, although the player explained beforehand that his treatment was individual. Wilful treatment however of an already established art standard can go too far, especially when the balance of the tonality of the phrases is upset.

The rest of the program was two Eighteenth Century Sonatas by Padre Soler, an Orgy from Fantastic Dances by Turina, The Lady and the Nightingale, Granados, and Dance in A minor, de Falla. The whole of the second half of the program was given more modulation than the first. Repeated phrases and strong staccato punctuations in the first half becoming somewhat monotonous in tone and style. It was an interesting demonstration of the outstanding characteristics and execution of Spanish music and pleased a large audience in the hall of the new MPC Library, larger than the Student Union could have held. The Peninsula public can be grateful to the college for these free concerts of interesting artists arranged by Harvey Marshall and Angie Machado.

More Spanish themes were part of the exchange Chamber Music Concert at the Woman's Club on Sunday by a group from the Music and Arts Institute of San Francisco, directed by Ross McKee, when Lidia Romero sang de Falla's Seven Spanish Songs founded on Folk Melodies. With a temperament and voice suited to the music, still she was not as convincing as she could have been owing partly to the accompanist who played hard cold tones without sympathy or musical comprehension. The beautiful Schumann Leider Cycle, Frauenlieber and Leber, was the opening number, sung by Betty Hemmingsen who possesses an excellent mezzo-soprano voice but has not yet learned to express story or mood. This suffered from the same lack of comprehension in the accompanying which is a distinctive branch of musical art at which Lyle Gardner has not yet arrived. The Suite Georgienne for Two Pianos by Alexander Tcherepnine was played by Maureen Lundroth at first and Ross McKee at second pianos. The effect of this noisy piece was that of a crazy mob on the rampage but performed valiantly. We have heard work of Tcherepnine worthier of presentation, though the audience seemed to like its mad and dissonant excitement, or perhaps merely wished to applaud the pianists' efforts. Some of the players of our Chamber Orchestra finally appeared to give the guest conductor and composer Fedor Viabalin's Music for Strings, a piece originally written for quartet and rearranged for the Carmel concert. Except for the Andante movement, which opened with a promising theme of simplicity, introduced in turn by bass, cello and violins, the other three movements said little clearly, while the conductor worked overly hard to exert the players. Too bad there is no better report to be given to these visitors but the fact remains that most of our local musicians surpass them and we hope will prove this when they give their concert in exchange in San Francisco on June 5.

Bruce Monahan

Mrs. Esther Bruce Monahan, a resident of Carmel for over 35 years, died on Sunday in Mill Valley where she had been staying while seriously ill for the past three months with her sister, Mrs. John Covey. She was the mother of Michael Monahan of Los Angeles, formerly of Carmel, and the sister of Alec Gibson of Carmel.

Mrs. Monahan was born in Arequipa, Peru, and spent her childhood in Chile. Following her marriage to Dr. Richard Monahan, she lived for a time in Tientsin, China, where Mr. Monahan was the physician for a British mining company.

Mrs. Monahan also travelled with her mother and sister to the Hawaiian Islands, Tahiti and Japan. In the latter country she studied ballet with Nijinsky. She had heard about Carmel and on a visit to San Francisco saw a poster advertising a play at the Forest Theater, and came here on a visit with her mother. They decided to abandon plans to return to Honolulu to live and built a house at Ninth Avenue and Lincoln Street.

During the 1920s Mrs. Monahan participated in Forest Theater productions working with John Northern Hilliard, Garnet Holme, Rem Remsen and Herbert Heron until the birth of her son Michael, in 1930.

Later when her son, then a student at Sunset School, evinced a strong interest in dramatics, Mrs. Monahan turned her garage into a theater for Michael and his friends. The boys produced plays which they wrote and were always tirelessly helped in every production by Mrs. Monahan who remained a close friend of the boys during their Carmel High School years. Later assisting some of these same boys, now young men, when they produced musicals at the Forest Theater. Her son Michael was co-author, producer and had a leading role in one of these musicals, This Is It, when an undergraduate at Santa Clara University where he won honors in dramatics.

During the years Michael served in the Navy and afterwards Mrs. Monahan watched with interest as he developed a career in the theater appearing with Southern California little theater groups until he became an established television and moving picture actor.

Following her mother's death ten years ago, Mrs. Monahan trained and entered the profession of practical nursing where her cheerful disposition and generous personality were assets.

In addition to her son, brother and sister, she is survived by three grandchildren and a nephew, Colin Covey of Mill Valley.

At Mrs. Monahan's request her body was given to the University of California Medical School. Friends wishing to honor her memory may do so in the form of donations to the Monterey County Cancer Society, Box 1028, Carmel.

Political Implication In Audience Reaction To Fisherman's Luck?

By BOB KALLER

A Fisherman's Luck, the current production at the First Theatre in Monterey, is the 109th by the Troupers of the Gold Coast since their opening night in June, 1937. For 23 years the Troupers have presented authentic 19th Century Melodrama, insuring the continuance of a unique theatre.

The present show, directed by David Eldridge, is not only a worthy successor to a long line of ancestors, but has managed to achieve a smooth blend of old-time histrionics with the laconic approach of modern Hollywood, thanks to Eldridge's deft hand.

Bud Houghton as William Farren, alias Squire Hammond, provides a highly satisfactory villain for an audience to hiss at. The plot of the play follows the classic pattern of melodrama with mortgage evictions, dire plots to secure money, and the thwarting of true love that finally triumphs. The one item that fascinated this beholder was that most of the audience's sympathy seemed to be for the mortgage-holder when the eviction came rather than for the tenant. Is this because Californians have all become investors? The political implications could be earthshaking.

Mrs. Madeleine Hicks supplied one of the 'down-east-est' accents heard in a long time in the role of the motherly Mrs. Manly, and Lee Williams was a fine upstanding hero as her son. Peggy McVeary as Ruth Manly and Len Will as Si Kidder stole most of the show however as the comedy relief, and performed some necking scenes with an awkward aplomb that would normally indicate considerable practice.

Al Olinger as James Hammond, the rejected suitor achieved the laudable ambition of seeming to slink without actually slinking, and a finer accolade no one could bestow on a thespian. Geordie Withee was delightful in the role of a pure young girl while Nancy Bushore as the heroine, Rose Prescott, and Art Lucindro as Uncle Davie lived up to the best traditions of the melodrama.

In the Olio afterwards, all the regulars turned in gay performances under the leadership of Alex Olivetti and Barbara Zeigweid, but Paul Hazdovac of Carmel particularly captivated the audience by unveiling one of the clearest and finest voices heard in years on the musical hall stages of this area.

Before her death, Miss Dene Denny, surviving partner of the Denny-Watrous Management, requested that the California State Park Commission grant Charles Thomas, her managing director, the concession to serve as Producer at California's First Theatre so that its authenticity and high calibre could be maintained. The current show is one more testimonial to her acuteness of judgement. Mr. Thomas has done a first rate job.

A Fisherman's Luck will continue every Friday and Saturday night through May, and we can strongly recommend a visit to tourist or native seeking a gay, zany, and thoroughly enjoyable evening.

ventional scale. Her major work is a monumental construct entitled The New Day, dedicated to the cause of world peace.

"I can only describe it as a symbolic work for dramatic performance," she says. "It is scored for full symphony, 12 soloists, Terpichorean ensemble, and two large choruses. Performance time is about two hours. Because of its size, it hasn't been performed so far."

She is the composer of many other choral works and songs, some with orchestral accompaniment.

In addition to teaching, composing, writing musical criticism for The Pine Cone, and providing program notes for the Monterey County Symphony, Miss Lindsay-Oliver is a successful painter in both oils and water color. The walls of her new studio are covered with landscapes, still lifes, portraits, and imaginative and symbolic canvases. She has exhibited in Washington, D. C.; Davenport, Iowa; Chevy Chase, Maryland; and at the Artists League of America gallery in Carmel.

She is deeply interested in the World Peace movement, and many of her paintings and musical works are thematically related to it.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver was born in Scotland, and received her early musical training there and in London. She first came to this country before World War I, and since then has lived and worked in New York; the Tri-City area of Davenport, Rock Island, and Moline; Trenton, Newark, and Paterson, N. J.; Lynchburg and Roanoke, Virginia; and Carmel. She had visited Carmel more than twenty years ago, and returned to make her home here in 1955.

During her long and colorful career in the music world, Miss Lindsay-Oliver has worked as an actress, concert pianist, conductor, impresario, and critic.

For many years she handled concerts on the east coast and the middle west, presenting such artists as Alma Gluck, Madame Schumann-Heink, Galli-Curci, Rachmaninoff, Tetrazzini, and John McCormack.

For six years she was music critic on a middle west daily paper. For the past five seasons she has reviewed the Bach Festival concerts for The Pine Cone, and will do so for the coming season.

Miss Lindsay-Oliver sums up the two passions of her life: "My hope is to bring about more thought toward international and world harmony through music, which I consider to be as great an international language as exists."

Their bouquets of roses shaded in color from pink to dark red.

Mrs. Knowles attended her daughter's wedding wearing a full-skirted brown chiffon dress, small veiled flower hat and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Mrs. James C. Bannerman, the groom's mother, wore a Sebastian blue Italian knit dress, blue accessories and white orchids.

Gentlemen:

March 27, 1960, two cars collided at the intersection of Carpenter Street and 1st Avenue in Carmel. One driver was treated for facial cuts at Peninsula Community Hospital.

Less than a month later, April 23, two more cars collided at the same intersection. One driver was treated for facial cuts at the same hospital.

In both cases, one vehicle was southbound on Carpenter, the other eastbound on 1st.

The intersection is blind from these approaches. A high stone wall obstructs the views of drivers coming from these directions.

Carpenter, technically or not, is thought of as a through street by drivers. First Avenue, technically or not, is not a through street.

The intersection is not marked. It has neither a stop sign nor a right-of-way sign.

The intersection is extremely dangerous. It should be marked.

It is requested that you thoroughly investigate this intersection in the light of its need for safety markers.

Sincerely,

John D. Keefauver.

Hiram Smith

Hiram Worline Smith of Carmel Highlands, father of Carmel Fire Chief Robert E. Smith, died on Monday morning in a Salinas hospital from head and chest injuries received in an automobile accident on Friday night on Highway 101 near the Fort Ord cut-off.

Mr. Smith was born on December 22, 1911, in Grand Rapids, Michigan. He had lived in California for most of his life and was a fireman in the Arcade Fire Department near Sacramento for some years before owning and operating a service station in Sacramento. He came here two months ago and lived at the Carmel Highlands Fire House with his wife, Hertha Edna Smith, his son, Timothy W. Smith, member of the Carmel Highlands Fire Department, and a younger son, Christopher, a student at River School. Several weeks ago Mr. Smith was credited with saving the life of a small child who had fallen into Malpas Creek and was apparently drowned when discovered. The child's mother stopped Mr. Smith who was passing on the coast highway. He administered mouth to mouth resuscitation and the child revived.

Mr. Smith served in the Navy during World War II. He was a member of the Loyal Order of the Moose in Sacramento.

Besides his wife and three sons, he is survived by three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held this morning in Mission Mortuary with the Reverend Harold Dorn of Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran Church officiating. Burial, with full military honors, took place this afternoon in Golden Gate National Cemetery, San Bruno.

CARMELITES AT PICNIC DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dawson and their daughter, Karen, attended Picnic Day at the University of California at Davis on Saturday and were guests of their son, Dale, a Phi Delta Theta pledge, at the fraternity open house luncheon that day. Dale, a freshman, is a member of the UCD varsity baseball team.

In charge of the Phi Delta float in the parade which opened Picnic Day events at Davis was John Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Williams of Carmel Valley, a senior.

Lucinda Lloyd of Carmel was one of three girls on the Hughes Hall float. Foundations for the Future was the parade and Picnic Day theme.

Carmel High School head cheerleader, Phyllis Clayton, with Miss Lynn Matthew, a Davis alumnae, also attended Picnic Day events. Miss Matthew is home economics teacher at Carmel High School.

parking places be replaced with landscaping, also that a fence be constructed to screen the parking lot from public view. The two-story motel will have 20 units and a swimming pool. Mr. Catalan is the owner of Lamp Lighters Inn at Ocean Avenue and Camino Real.

Harrison Godwin may install an additional 13 lights for Pine Inn parking lot at the corner of Monte Verde and Sixth. These will be low fixtures "for safety, not advertising," as expressed by Commissioner Florence Josselyn. Building Inspector Floyd Adams, however, pointed out this lighting would not conform with a new ordinance under consideration to control floodlighting in the business district.

Robert Little and Dr. Dexter Whitcomb plan to remodel the exterior of Carmel Lodge, San Carlos and Fifth, to provide interior access from the lodge to Carmel Sands Motel next door which they also operate. They have acquired an extra lot back of Carmel Lodge and adjacent to the motel parking lot. Using the two lots they will rearrange the parking for both properties, now considered one site, thus providing 26 off-street parking spaces.

A change of Fenton Plaza floor plans will be made, particularly in undesignated space, and consist of interior partitioning only.

Milo Matteson was denied permission to add a second story to Ocean View Lodge, at Junipero and Third. Commissioners did not approve the design and coloring of the structure or an exposed north exposure without sufficient landscaping. Setbacks were inadequate, also, and the second story was objectionable to neighbors in the adjacent residential district, according to Commissioner Dorothy von Meier.

Sidney A. Dibble was not allowed to remove a landscaped area to provide three off-street parking spaces for Wayfarer Inn, Mission and Fourth. A driveway to the 18 foot deep parking would eliminate a loading zone and one on-street parking space, resulting in only one gained parking space. The driveway would also open on the sidewalk and cause a safety problem on a truck route. Mr. Dibble protested this decision.

Allen Knight's request for a variance to add on to his marine museum at Guadalupe and Sixth in the residence zone was denied on the grounds that a long narrow building with insufficient setbacks adversely affected the neighborhood.

All Saints' Church wishes to add to its present building on three lots fronting on Dolores Street south of the church now on a use permit in the residence zone. A commission public hearing on May 25 will decide whether or not the use permit shall be extended to include the extra land, making a total of eight lots.

Another public hearing on May 25 to change the municipal code to eliminate mailing of notices to all property owners affected by city rezoning will also be held. The city rezoning in this instance would be for beaches, parks and the new zoning ordinance and affect 90 percent of Carmel property owners.

A zone of interest of 300 feet in all directions and across the street from two lots owned by Marie F. Burns and Frances Hudgins and Helen Heavey on Lincoln Street, northwest of Sixth, was established. The owners want to rezone these lots from residential use to parking lot use. Property owners will receive notice of the rezoning request and a public hearing will be set. John Keppelman told commissioners that the Christian Science Church plans to purchase these lots for off-street parking if the rezoning is granted.

Seven Carmel High School students signed up last Saturday morning to take a four-week training course to become cerebral palsy monitors. They are Peggy Newton, Julie Campbell, Penny King, Gwen Meyer, Cornelia Lieb, Barbara Cooke and Mike Walsh, almost all members of the medical science club at the high school.

For four Saturday mornings these students will train at the Monterey USO to become capable of being left in charge of a cerebral palsy patient. The program is sponsored by the Tri-County Cerebral Palsy Association. A need for trained monitors for cerebral palsy patients has been demonstrated in this area. After training the seven students will receive regular baby sitting rates for their work in homes of cerebral palsy patients.

Carmel High School band, also the choir, will take part in the Coast Counties Music Festival at Hollister High School on Saturday. Directed by John Farr, the choir will sing at noon, the band plays at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Bands and choirs from ten high schools and three junior high schools will take part in the tri-county annual event, located in a different town each year. Performances in two auditoriums will be continuous from 8:00 in the morning until 5:00 in the afternoon. All entrants are evaluated. The festival is open to the public without charge.

Sprays of red poppies enclose the invitations which the students and faculty of Woods School have sent out for their annual Spring Dance Festival tomorrow afternoon starting at 1:30 o'clock, weather permitting.

Any interested person is invited to the event, part of the Public Schools Week program in the Carmel Unified School District.

Carmel High School carried off three of the nine prizes at Monterey Peninsula College's Fourth Annual Journalism Day, April 21.

Ciji Ware, Senior at CHS, won a prize pin for her feature story. She wrote about an interview with a trio of folksingers who are students at MPC.

Carmel High School junior Gwen Meyer, who did not attend the conference, won a pin as first prize for her poem I Waited, which was entered in advance of the conference.

The Carmel High School literary magazine Chameleon won the cup for the best high school literary work.

Approximately 60 students attended the conference from six Peninsula high schools. The eleven from Carmel High School were Connie Gate, Carol Creighton, Denise Scott, Jean Harrah, Ethel Prowell, Perry Chettick, Bruce Frankel, Spanish and Journalism instructor from Carmel High, Salvador Ruiz, attended the conference as faculty advisor.

City-commission committee to study driveway grades arose from difficulties now existing in the residence zone in respect to grading driveways as required by the street department. The city council frequently is asked to grant variances from the 15 percent grade demanded. There are also violations.

At next Wednesday afternoon's adjourned session a map of the new four-zone central district plan will be ready for the commission to present the same night to the city council. Commission changes in the original plan will also be considered at the adjourned session.

Commission adoption of the new zoning ordinance is continued until May 25.

Parish Night. "If we begin our thinking with a clear understanding of the separation of Church and State, we can understand that the job of the State is the preservation of law and order," he went on to say. "With the obvious increase in the rate of crimes of violence, this is no time to lessen the punishment, even if it means the extreme penalty."

We have a title for a theme song we offer to anyone who wants to write one: Anxiety at Asilomar. It could start out:

"Come my love,
and worry with me,
At lovely Asilomar by the sea.
This week we have a National Defense Conference, full of nuclear warfare overtones.

May 6-8, the World Affairs Council holds its 14th annual conference. Its theme: Competitive Coexistence—Dilemma of the 60's.

June 11-12 the University of California Extension holds a two-day program, titled: Family Life in Transition: An American Dilemma.

The World Affairs Council have a plum to pull out of their anxiety pie. Their Majesties, The King and Queen of Nepal, are going to be there, according to the WAC Media Coordinator, Donnie Stewart. But appropriately, it's an anxious plum. "His Majesty King Mahendra rules a critical land area located between India and Communist-controlled Tibet, and will clarify Nepal's foreign policy aims at Saturday evening's session of the conference."

Don't rush over there thinking it's worth a little anxiety to get a free look at a king.

The fees for the sessions range from $3.50 to $27.50.

We're fortunate, really, that there are so many people willing to face anxiety to find a solution to all our dilemmas. Perhaps more of us should go to these meetings and receive illumination from great minds. This is what escapist Carmel missed by not attending the National Defense Strategy Conference on its second day session at Asilomar. Chief of the Army's Research and Development, Lieutenant General Arthur G. Trudeau said:

"We must redouble our efforts to guard and advance the American way of life—a life based on a belief in the dignity of man, and freedom and justice for all.

"We must realize in this Age of Great Change that time is of the essence, and that faith, not fear; and courage, not complacency, will be the keys to our survival."

History Is Spanish To Donald Craig's High School Class

stand, but language was no barrier. They continued their interested listening and questioning in spite of bright lights turned on them as the lesson was televised for a Salinas station. They also enjoyed the quips made by Mr. Craig, in Spanish, as he was vested and later divested with a television microphone.

Particularly impressive was the fact that the students showed no embarrassment in speaking a foreign language and unhesitatingly expressed their thoughts. Spectators at the demonstration marvelled at the language proficiency displayed by the students.

The regular English United States History textbook is used for the combined classes, but all teaching and student participation is in Spanish. Other United States History and Spanish 3 courses are taught at the school.

The United States History in Spanish class was started for two purposes, to give double time to Spanish language study each day and at the same time fill the state requirement for the compulsory history course.

TEACHERS TO ATTEND EARLY CHILDHOOD STUDY SESSION

Teachers and administrators from schools in Carmel will attend another study session Monday in the program to develop greater continuity of instruction from kindergarten through third grade in schools throughout Monterey County.

Dr. Howard Lane, professor of psychology at San Francisco State College, will meet with administrators, supervisors and guidance personnel from Peninsula and coast area schools at 9:00 o'clock in the morning at the Monterey Board of Education.

The group will then move to Pacific Grove High School for a 4:00 o'clock presentation by Dr. Lane and will be joined by kindergarten through third grade teachers at that time. Pacific Grove will be host for a coffee hour at 3:30 o'clock.

Under the sponsorship of County Schools Superintendent Gladys Stone, Dr. Lane's topic will be Guiding Children in Early Childhood Today.
